John Lewis-Stempel

Author of Six Weeks

Often fresh out of school, many junior officers in the First World War went from being school prefects to having to lead their men in a charge over the top. The result was the carnage of the first few weeks of the Battle of the Somme. The acclaimed historian John Lewis-Stempel, who lives near Hereford, will be talking about the harrowing and poignant research for his top-selling book which charts the bravery and patriotism of these young men whose life expectancy was just Six Weeks.

Time: 12 for 12.30pm

Tickets: £24 including a two-course lunch and a glass of wine. Signed copies of John's book will be on sale at an event discount.

Sunday, 24th April
